NOTICE

O WING to war conditions and the scarcity of fuel and labor, many florists in all parts of the country were obliged to close their green houses. This condition has made a great shortage of growing stock and prices have advanced in all lines. Every indication now points to a great scarcity of bedding stock and it is doubtful if there is enough stock in the country to meet the demand. Owing to the above condition this year we are not issuing a descriptive catalogue such as has been our custom for many years. Customers who have our 1918 catalogue will please retain same as stocks are almost identical, although prices have changed on many items. We still have copies of our last year's catalogue on hand which will be mailed at request.

GERANIUMS.

This, the most popular of all bedding plants, is in shorter supply than in many years. Early in the spring of 1918 all Florists were notified by the Federal Fuel Commission that they would be restricted to 50 per cent. of their usual fuel requirements. This meant that the space devoted to growing stock must be restricted in about the same ratio, and many Florists rather than go to the expense of changing their heating plants to meet the changed conditions closed their houses entirely. When it is realized that this condition exists over the entire country it can be readily seen that there must be a shortage. While this condition applies to all bedding plants, on account of the great number of Geraniums usually grown for bedding purposes, the shortage is felt more than in any other line. Owing to conditions mentioned above, we are obliged to advance our prices, and while we have a good stock would advise our customers to order early as there will not be enough good stock in the country to meet the demand.

HARDY HERBACEOUS PLANTS

We have a large and varied collection of plants that are perfectly hardy in our severe winters, but wish to call special attention to the Phlox and Paeony, both of which are as hardy as a dandelion and increase in growth and beauty from year to year.

HARDY PHLOX.

This is something everyone can grow and should be in every garden. The flowers are of fine form and colors and are produced in profusion during a long season. We have a fine collection in all the colors ranging from pure white, through all the shades of pink and red to deep purplish crimson.

Strong field grown plants, 20 cts. each, $2.00 per doz.

PAEONIES.

The most satisfactory of all outdoor flowers. A rival of the rose, you can not plant too many of them. The old fashioned paeony of our grandmother's garden while still popular, has been eclipsed by the wonderful new introductions. Our collection is unsurpassed.

Strong roots, 35 and 50 cts. each.

Strong 2 year old plants, 75 cts. each.

Strong 3 year old plants, $1.00 each.

HARDY SHRUBS

There are many varieties of hardy shrubs, so called, which while hardy in more southern locations are absolutely unsuited for our severe climate. We are fortunate, however, that among the many the best are perfectly hardy here.

Japanese Barberry. One of the most desirable shrubs for grouping or hedge purposes. Its highly colored foliage and bright red fruits are very attractive in the fall, absolutely hardy. 25 cts. each, $2.50 per doz. Strong plants 35 cts. each, $3.50 per doz.

Hydrangea Paniculata Grandiflora. Probably the most popular of all hardy shrubs, and one of the easiest to grow. The growth is five to six feet high, and the immense panicles of white flowers are produced in August and September when very few shrubs are in flower. Strong plants 50 cts. each.

Hydrangea Arborescens. Hills of Snow. This showy hydrangea has snow-white blossoms of immense size. Its most valuable characteristic is its coming into bloom just after the passing of all spring blooming shrubs. 35 cts. each.

Spirea Van Houtii. The most showy of all spireas and one of the best hardy shrubs in existence. The flowers are white in great clusters, forming plumes two feet or more in length. Valuable for hedge planting and for single specimen planting cannot be excelled. 35 cts. each, $3.50 per doz.
